MEDIATION AS A COMPONENT OF WORKPLACE REHABILITATION

Often conflict arises as a result of individuals returning to work from long absences or illness can occur in the workplace as a result of conflict and politics.

Employees and rehabilitation providers can prevent injury claims escalating or psychological claims occurring by effectively managing disputes and negative discussion.

Weighing up the costs of mediation (average $1625.00) in the workplace versus lost productivity and potential claims is a sensible management calculation of reward versus risk.
